

Privacy Notice for Power OnSite

Last Revised: September 10, 2019

This privacy notice describes how Caterpillar company collects and processes the personal information through Power Onsite. This notice is consistent with Caterpillar's Global Privacy Statement, which describes how Caterpillar collects, processes and shares personal data, rights that you may have under privacy laws, and other information relevant to Caterpillar's processing of personal information. Caterpillar's Global Privacy Statement is available at <http://www.caterpillar.com/dataprivacy>

What personal information does this App collect and process, and why?

Cat® Power OnSite app is a mobile device application that is designed to allow users to monitor data and faults real-time from an asset using the Caterpillar provided Bluetooth dongle. This App allows users to see the data and fault information and use them to locate a near-by dealer for service and/or order parts through the app. Cat® Power OnSite app is not designed or intended to any collect personal information and store any information about you other than the information provided by you during registration. The registration form is not part of the app and will lead you to a dedicated page on www.cat.com. You will have to express your consent on that page and Caterpillar's Global Privacy Statement (<http://www.caterpillar.com/dataprivacy>) applies to this form as well. The app allows you to update your profile picture if desired. This picture will not be used or shared anywhere outside the app. This application uses google analytics which collects your location information along with information about the make, manufacturer and OS details of the phone as part of the feature. Google analytics is used within the app to determine how it is being used and to potentially make updates to the App. More information on Google Analytics can be found at <https://marketingplatform.google.com/about/analytics/>.

Where can I obtain further information about this App and its privacy practices?
